Assembly Bill Providing for a New Bridge Across the East River.

George Gould Subpoensed by Strike Investigators.

ALBANY, March 14 .- "Uncle Dan" Bradley, who has been trying to reform the Senate for the part day or two, by sting on a strict adherence to parentary rules, was squiched to-day, twenty-nine of the thirty-two Senators voting the passage of a rule which prevents "Uncle Dan" from continuing his

The Senate refused to pass one of "Uncle Dan's" bills a day or so ago, and he says he is being discriminated against by his colleagues.

For two days he compelled the reading of every word in the measures considered, and said disagreeable things about blicans who wear the Platt collar, whenever objection was made to his

The rule adopted to-day empowers the Senate to dispense with the thorough reading of bills on two-thirds vote. "Uncle Dan" was a little dazed by this retaliatory measure, but returned to the fray with this comment: "Well, you can adopt gag laws to everride the Constitution, but it's all right. My day is coming, and the col--wearers like O'Connor will be sorry. I will do everything I can to stop the ushing through of jobs."

The compensation of the Commissioner, except the Mayors of the two cities who are ex-officio members, is fixed at $10 per day. The care, management and control of the bridge, after its completion, are to be vested in the trustees of the New York and Brooklyn Bridge Company.

The income of the bridge, after all the legitimate expenses have been paid, is to accrue to the two cities in equial parts. No estimate of the probable cost of the bridge is given in the bill, but estimates made by competent engineers within the last year place the amount necessary in excess of $15,000,000.
